

The Way Back Program – Dubbo and surrounds

Support after a suicide attempt or crisis

The Way Back Program is a free service providing non-clinical, psychosocial support to people following a recent suicide attempt or crisis.

How The Way Back Program works?

Dedicated Care Coordinators provide tailored, one-on-one support for up to three months. They work with patients to develop a program based on individual needs. This can include:

- safety planning
- financial or relationship counselling
- engagement with community groups
- help to arrange and attend health care appointments.
